Demonstrative adjectives and pronouns

In Spanish, as in English, demonstrative adjectives are words that "demonstrate" or "point out" nouns.

Demonstrative adjectives precede the nouns they modify and, like other Spanish adjectives you have studied, agree with them in gender and number.

esta camisa
this shirt

ese vendedor that salesman

aquellos zapatos
those shoes (over there)

Singular		Plural
Masculine	Feminine	Masculine	Feminine
este	esta	estos	estas	this; these ese	esa	esos	esas	that; those
aquel	aquella	aquellos	aquellas	that (over there) those (over there)

- ▶ The demonstrative adjectives este, esta, estos, and estas are used to point out nouns that are close to the speaker and the listener.
- ▶ The demonstrative adjectives ese, esa, esos, and esas are used to point out nouns that are not close in space and time to the speaker. They may, however, be close to the listener.
- ▶ The demonstrative adjectives aquel, aquella, aquellos, and aquellas are used to point out nouns that are far away from the speaker and the listener.

Demonstrative pronouns

- ▶ Demonstrative pronouns are identical to their corresponding demonstrative adjectives, with the exception that they carry an accent mark on the stressed vowel.

Demonstrative pronouns

Singular		Plural
éste	ésta	éstos	éstas
ése	ésa	ésos	ésas
aqué	aquélla	aqué	aquéllas

¡Atención! Like demonstrative adjectives, demonstrative pronouns agree in gender and number with the corresponding noun.

Este libro es de Pablito.

Éstos son de Juana.

- ▶ There are three neuter demonstrative pronouns: esto, eso, and aquello. These forms refer to unidentified or unspecified nouns, situations, ideas, and concepts. They do not change in gender or number and never carry an accent mark.

—¿Qué es esto?
What's this?

—Eso es interesante.
That's interesting.

—Aquello es bonito.
That's pretty.

- ① Translate the clothing vocabulary
 ② Choose the correct demonstrative adjective.
 ↳ Remember! It must agree in gender and number with the noun.
